

P-12: Swiss Research Centre on Islam and Society

Processes of integration and participation for Muslims in Switzerland are the subject of scholarly analysis with reference to: anchoring an Islamic self-reflection at the university; the social situatedness of Islam; and various action fields in civil society. The Swiss Research Centre on Islam and Society at the University of Fribourg engages in research and teaching in the interest of developing a scholarly body of work in Islamic theology in the context of Switzerland. Moreover, research at the Centre establishes connections both between scholarly and social debates and between research and continuing education; these connections serve to transfer knowledge to the target groups in Islamic communities and in administration, education and social work.